What is Uniguard?

New customers are often curious about this system. The technology has been around for many years. However in recent years, it has been improved and refined.

Uniguard is a data recording system. The way it works is small data storage units that look like watch batteries are placed at various points at your home or business. When we patrol your site we press a recording unit against the data point and it records the time and date and the name of the guard who was at that location.

This data is downloaded and stored for your reference. Many of our customers opt to receive these data reports weekly or monthly and they can see that we are checking their sites and they have that peace of mind, knowing for certain that while they are away from their business, we are out there watching.

This technology, combined with GPS tracking in all of our vehicles, gives G-TEC a transparency and accountability that is now the industry standard.

With G-TEC providing your security, you can rest assured that we are always out there working hard to protect your assets. And we can prove it.
