AQUASPACE CARBON COMPOUND

Developed by NASA to far exceed the contaminant removal abilities of any other filter whilst leaving in beneficial minerals such as calcium and magnesium. Having to develop a filtration media capable of protecting against potential radioactive contamination and in emergencies for astronauts to produce portable water from urine has given the AQUASPACE unique features for the removal of organic-inorganic chemicals, heavy metals and nitrates, herbicides, pesticides and many other contaminants. Physically this filter has a pore size of 1 micron but the patented absorption process is such that it easily removes and retains contaminants under half that size.

One gram of the AQUASPACE media has an absorption area of 2000 sq metres. When tested by an independent lab in the USA, contaminated city water filtered through an AQUASPACE cartridge was shown to have identical taste and purity when compared with Evian Bottle water.
