Slurry Vacuum Trucks

NEW

Concrete cutting is well known to be a very messy business creating a lot of slurry waste & water build up which can cause real problems. Manual slurry removal on large jobs is outdated and a thing of the past with Robert Guy & Sons being a market leader we would like to introduce our NEW vacuum trucks.

Our truck mounted units are designed for pot holing known as 'no dig excavation' protecting cables & important wires. They also eliminate hazardous and dangerous manual removal of those problem causing materials such as sludge, slurry, solids, & liquids in the most environmentally friendly way possible.

With a built in silencer & overflow tank minimising noise levels it makes these units perfect for residential use.

Our trucks are big enough to complete your job requirements no matter the size however they are small and compact to do those jobs that other trucks are simply too big for.

No matter your location Robert Guy & Sons have experienced operators and top of the range equipment to complete your job from the beginning with our locating equipment to the cutting or drilling to the end with clean up, using our new trucks saving you time, man power and more importantly protecting our environment.

During the cutting process slurry is collected from the saw at the same time and is then retained in the on board tanks. We remove all waste from site and dispose of correctly at a registered recycling plant in the most environmentally friendly way possible protecting our native flora and fauna.

Once you have experienced this technique of slurry control & collection you will not go back to using conventional slurry control systems.

*Please Note: Use of these trucks will be subject to site evaluation*
