

WHITES & NEUTRALS

SALINGER HALF

FRESH start

On the surface of things, it would seem simple enough. You've decided that you need to freshen up a space by painting it white. But this is where it gets tricky: which white?

There are so many ways to make sure that the colour you're choosing is going to be perfect for your space. Check out our tips below to help you find the perfect white or neutral for your home.

One of the main things to consider before picking your perfect colour is the lighting in your home. Lighting greatly affects how your whites and neutrals will look and change throughout the day.

Artificial lighting comes in both warm and cool globes, so even changing the light bulb in your house can give you the look you are after. A warm globe will work best with warm whites and a cool globe will work best with cool whites.

Natural light will also give a different look to your whites and neutrals, so make sure you test your selection during the day and night over a few days before making your choice. For example, north and west facing rooms will receive a warm natural light, while south and east facing rooms will receive a cooler natural light.

The best way to test a Taubmans colour in your home is to purchase a Taubmans Sample Pot and see how the colour responds in different natural and artificial lights on different walls in your home.

Whether you're painting inside or out, we've curated a selection of our brightest whites and greys, to our cosiest beiges and stones. Standing alone, they'll create an impressive backdrop; or paired with another, they'll play a perfect complementary role.

COOL

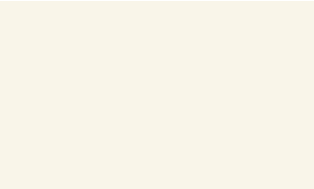

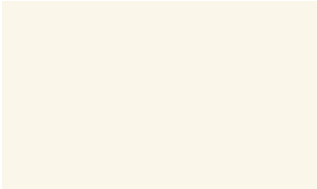

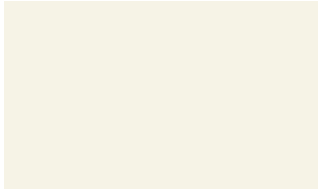

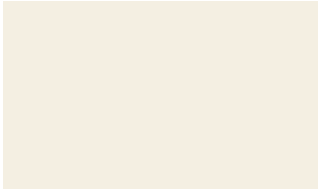

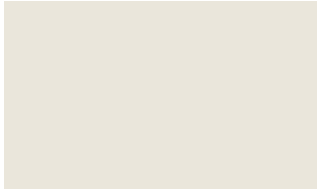

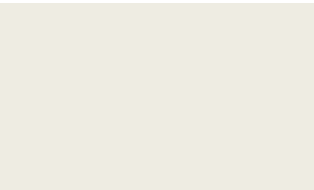

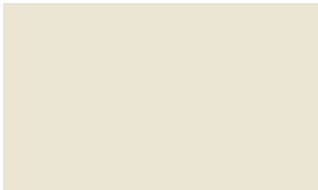

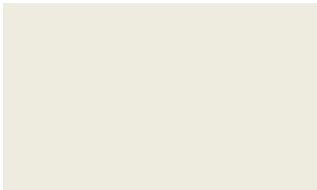

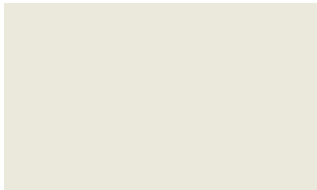

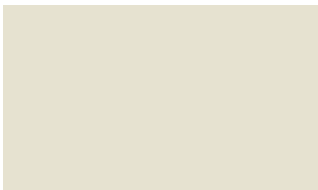

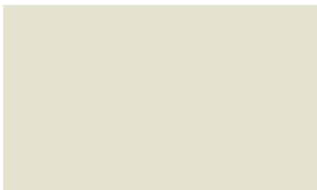

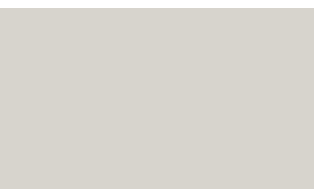

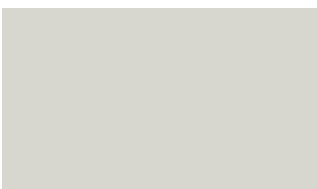

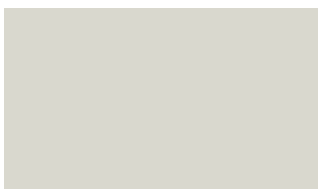

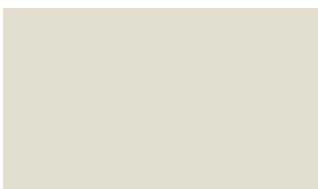

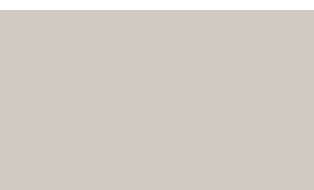

WHITES & NEUTRALS

Crisp and clean, cool whites provide a perfect palette both on their own, and with bolder colours. Modern interiors lean towards brilliant whites and greys so use this as a guide to selecting whites and the colours that work with it.

WARM

Cosy and inviting, warmer whites and neutrals enhance relaxation with their subtle tones. Create the mood for your space with this delicious palette, and take in cues from your environment to create balance and harmony.
