Safe Tree Preservation

There are many reasons that a tree might become sick. Deadwood, leaves, bark issues and Fungus can all be a warning sign that a tree is under stress. Safely removing deadwood is one thing but we need to understand the underlying problems. Tree sickness might be caused by pests, decaying roots or tree age. There are other variables such as root issues and rot, lack of water or oxygen and previous damage or incorrect treatment of the tree in the past. We will do thorough diagnoses of your tree health before commencing any job.

Deadwood

Deadwood can often be a sign that your tree may be sick and you should see proffessional advice from a qualified arborist in this case. When it comes to the crown of the tree our qualified arborists will safely climb the tree to remove deadwood. Removing deadwood is also commonly referred to as Crown raising, and crown reduction. Unsafe tree Limbs can also be removed at this stage. As well as making a tree safer, a crown lift or reduction can also improve a view or allow more sunlight onto a property, which can make a dramatic effect on the aesthetics of a home, and property.

Spurless climbing.

Wearing spurs to climb a tree is common practice for tree removal but this method should never be used when retaining a tree as it damages tree preservation by putting holes into the trunk of the tree allowing rot and disease to set in. Our qualified arborists use rope and pully systems to climb the tree safely and without damage to cut out deadwood and remove dangerous limbs. Crown raising or crown cleaning of the tree can also be done using this tree climbing method

Protected Trees in the Sunshine Coast and Queensland

In Queenslands Sunshine Coast we have many protected trees and we also have storm issues so we need to ensure those protected trees are also not a hazard. As arborists we specialise in ensuring that a tree is healthy and safe and whilst removing a tree is not always appropriate we can climb it safely and remove hazardous branches and deadwood to resolve your tree issues.
